

The Ancient History of India, an Archeological View

by Potluri Rao In Seattle ©2018 (CC BY 4.0)

Indian history as portrayed in the Puranas is pure fiction, invented by Greeks, to deliberately destroy the ancient Hindu civilization. Greeks are the recent primitive ignorance-based warmongering people who worshiped war and god. Hindu were the ancient advanced logic-based people who were compassionate and lived in peace and prosperity for sixty thousand years. They never had the European concepts of King, War, Weapons, God, or Temple. The ignorant Europeans believed that only the people who worship war and god are the civilized, and it is god's will to destroy the nonbelievers. Since Hindu did not worship war or god, they were to be destroyed, to please the gods.

The Greeks in India succeeded in replacing the old peace-loving Hindu with the new version of worshipers of war and god. They used the fictional Puranas to accomplish their goal. What is currently known as Hindu civilization is the European culture of war and god, not the ancient Hindu culture of peace and logic.

Humans evolved in Africa 200 thousand years ago.

Sixty thousand years ago, much of the world was covered with glaciers, and the seawater was 500 feet below the current levels. The above map is a reconstruction of the landscape of sixty thousand years ago. At that time, the Red Sea was a lake, the Persian Gulf was the Tigris river, and the West Coast of India extended another 100 miles to reach the then Arabian Sea called the Indus Fan.

People who share the same DNA are called a Haplogroup. Sixty thousand years ago, the F Haplogroup voluntarily left Africa to reach India. They were the Hindu. They were highly advanced logic-based culture that discovered dependable perennial rainwater resources in India. They followed the rainwater, not animals for food. They had abundant supply of food resources. They were compassionate and peace-loving people. They never had war or god in sixty thousand years.

Sixty thousand years ago, the Hindu (F) were at the Red Sea lake. Forty thousand years ago, they were at the Tigris and Indus Fan. At that time, there was a giant catch basin surrounding the Mt. Trikuta of the Vindhyas. The basin captured the rainwater tapped by the Satpura Range. The inexhaustible supply of rainwater at the basin was the headwaters to the rivers Yamuna, Narmada, Godavari, Mahanadi, Ken, and Sone.

Twenty thousand years ago, the glaciers started to melt, and the rising sea levels swallowed the Red Sea lake, Tigris, and Indus Fan. The Hindu (F) were forced to relocate to the Trikuta basin, the only source of rainwater on the subcontinent. They lived only in the peninsular India, to the south of Delhi.

The Hindus lived in peace and tranquility for sixty thousand years before the Greeks moved to India. They never had the European concepts of King, War, Weapons, God, or Temple. They were democratic republics with open borders. They respected other peoples' rights and property. They were compassionate and helped each other as a giant family. Peace and prosperity with fair trade was their political philosophy.

During the Ice Age, Europe was covered with glaciers. The ice melted ten thousand years ago. Some primitive hunters and gatherers moved to Europe in search of food. The DNA R1a, R1a1, and R1b evolved along the blue line, at the top of the map. The R1a were the Eastern Europeans. The R1a1 were the Central Europeans (Persian). The R1b were the Western Europeans, the Greeks and Romans. The European cultures evolved only after 5,000 BCE. They moved south in search of food.

The Europeans grew up with animals, in a harsh climate with scarce food, and had to compete with the other animals for survival. They acquired animal survival instincts. They formed into rival packs and were constantly at war to rob each other. They were the animal survival instincts in human form. Getting rich by robbing other people was their political philosophy. They invented the concepts of King, War, Weapons, God, and Temple to rob each other. They were the exact opposite of the Hindus (F) who lived in peace and prosperity with abundant supply of food for the last sixty thousand years.

Four thousand years ago, there was a global drought that lasted for almost two hundred years. Europeans were forced to move south in search food.

Some of the Eastern Europeans (R1a) moved south in search of water to reach India to the north of Delhi. They occupied Kashmir and a small area between the rivers Yamuna and Ganges, to the north of Delhi, called Gandhara.

The R1a existed only in Kashmir and Gandhara, only after the global drought. They were unaware of the F group at the Trikuta. Gandhara and Trikuta were separated by a 500 mile wide wasteland with no reliable water supply to support human habitation.

The Central Europeans (R1a1) moved to Persia. They did not move to Kashmir or Gandhara. A subgroup of the R1a1 were called Brahmin. Brahmin were delusional. They believed that they had acquired supernatural powers with meditation (tapas). They were considered unworthy of living in a civilized society, and were expelled to Kashmir. Brahmin (R1a1) were refugees in Kashmir. They were insignificant in number.

Around 200 BCE, after Alexander, Greeks (R1b) occupied Persia (R1a1) and Kashmir (R1a). Greeks were the Western Europeans (R1b).

Idolatry was a Greek invention. The Greeks transformed idolatry into a highly profitable Temple business. They invested in expensive temples to attract people to be robbed. They promoted local popular heroes to god status to be housed in temples. They discovered the delusional Kashmir Brahmin (R1a1) refugees to invent fictional stories of temple gods with supernatural powers. The Kashmir Brahmin refugees were put on the Greek payroll. They were the Greek mouthpieces.

Temple gods were invented by the Greeks, not Brahmin, based on profit margin. Brahmin invented the fictional stories of temple gods with supernatural powers. They were the professional fiction writers for hire on the Greek payroll.

The Greeks occupied Kashmir around 200 BCE. Between 200 BCE and 200 CE, they robbed only Kashmir. They invented the fictional Kashmir temple gods Shiva and Vishnu. The fictional stories of Shiva and Vishnu, invented by the Kashmir Brahmin on the Greek payroll, were called Agamas. Agamas were composed only after 200 BCE.

Around 200 CE, the Greeks moved from Kashmir to Gandhara. Gandhara were the Eastern Europeans (R1a) who were constantly at war to rob each other. They adored war heroes. Rama and Krishna were the popular war heroes of the R1a. The Greeks paid the delusional Kashmir Brahmin, to vandalize local legends and landmarks to transform Rama and Krishna into fictional gods with supernatural powers. The fictional stories were called Puranas. Puranas were composed only after 200 CE.

Agamas were the fictional stories of Shiva and Vishnu invented to rob Kashmir. Puranas were fictional stories of Rama and Krishna invented to rob Gandhara.

The people in Kashmir and Gandhara were the R1a, the European cultures who worshiped war and god. They were not Hindu (F). Hindu lived only in the peninsular India, to the south of Delhi. Kashmir and Gandhara are to the north of Delhi.

The gods Shiva, Vishnu, Rama, and Krishna were the European gods, nothing to do with the Hindu who lived only to the south of Delhi. The Agamas and Puranas were fictional stories of Europeans who were constantly at war to rob each other.

Around 500 CE, the Greeks in Gandhara discovered that there was a huge population at the Trikuta. They moved to the Trikuta with their highly profitable Temple business.

The people at the Trikuta (F) were unaware of Gandhara (R1a), Greeks (R1b), Brahmin (R1a1), Shiva (R1a1), Vishnu (R1a1), Rama (R1a), and Krishna (R1a). They never had a war or god in sixty thousand years. They could not relate to the warmongering Gandhara gods of the European culture. The initial attempt by the Greeks to market the temple gods Shiva, Vishnu, Rama, and Krishna was a total failure.

The Greeks (R1b) tasked the delusional Kashmir Brahmin (R1a1) to rewrite their Agamas and Puranas to incorporate the local legends and landmarks at the Trikuta. Rama and Krishna were given a total makeover. They were presented, not as the Gandhara warmongers, but as heroes who fought evil spirits to protect the family values.

The delusional Kashmir Brahmin (R1a1) produced the Uttara Ramayana (500 CE) for Rama, and the Bhagavata Purana (500 CE) for Krishna. The new and revised versions of the Puranas glorified the family values of the Hindu at the Trikuta. Rama and Krishna were marketed as the protectors of Hindu values. The fictional Uttara and Bhagavata Puranas sold like hotcakes. They were escapism. They were worship of war and god beautifully packaged as sugar coated pills. The Hindu (F) swallowed it. There was a huge market for fiction. Fiction was addictive. People at the Trikuta were addicted to the Greek financed fiction. Hindu lost their soul and were transformed into the European culture of war and god worshipers.

The Greek invented sugar-coated poison pill killed the ancient Hindu civilization.

The Greeks were business savvy. They knew how to package and market a product. They did their market research. The Kashmir Brahmin never had intellect or logic. They were delusional fiction writers for hire. They just followed the Greek orders.

The Greeks moved to the Trikuta only around 500 CE. They deliberately and totally destroyed the Hindu civilization that existed for sixty thousand years in peace.

Brahmin Muni (R1a1) claimed to have acquired supernatural powers through meditation (tapas). They were delusional. Anyone who believes that one can obtain supernatural powers through meditation belongs in a psychiatric ward.

In the Greek financed fictional Brahmin Ramayana (Uttara), Sakuntala's father appeared hundreds of years later as Rama's teacher. Rama's father ruled Ayodhya for thousands of years before reluctantly giving up reign. Rama ruled for eleven thousand years. People in the fictional Brahmin Ramayana routinely lived for thousands of years. It was Brahmin rubbish.

Life expectancy of thousands of years in the Brahmin Puranas is sufficient to prove that they were fiction. Anyone, with critical thinking skills, would realize that no human ever lived much over 100 years. It was Brahmin rubbish.

The Kashmir Brahmin wanted a mean character Ravana as the antagonist. A Brahmin Muni used his supernatural powers to intentionally produce a baby with ten heads. Ravana, in the fictional Brahmin Ramayana (Uttara), was a Brahmin child with ten heads. Only a delusional Brahmin Muni would abuse his supernatural powers to produce a ten-headed monster as his baby. It was Brahmin rubbish.

The God Gopala-Krishna was invented in the Greek financed fictional Bhagavata Purana (500 CE). His childhood pranks made him adorable. The God Radha-Krishna was invented in the fictional Brahma Vivarta Purana (700 CE). His amorous encounters with Radha and the milk-maids made him very popular.

Stories of Krishna as a miracle maker were in high demand. Puranas invented numerous stories of Krishna the miracle maker. A compilation of all the fictional stories of Krishna, from Puranas, was called the Harivamsa Purana. It was marketed as a part of the Greek financed fictional epic Mahabharata. It was Brahmin rubbish.

Vasudeva Krishna was a professor of logic of a University at the Trikuta. He wrote a book on logic called the Bhagavad Gita. It was a basic textbook on logic at all schools at the Trikuta, for over a thousand years, before the Greeks moved to the Trikuta.

The Greeks deliberately vandalized the epic Mahabharata to cast professor Vasudeva Krishna as the warmongering Krishna of Gandhara. They trashed the Gita and incorporated it as a part of the epic. They assassinated professor Vasudeva Krishna's character and his logic. Logic was an existential threat to the Greek deception. The Greeks had to destroy professor Vasudeva Krishna and his logic. The extant Bhagavad Gita is Brahmin rubbish.

Siddhartha, Mahavira, and Ajatashatru were also professors of the same University. They were students of professor Vasudeva Krishna. They also wrote textbooks on logic. All of their work was also deliberately reduced to Brahmin rubbish.

The original Rig Veda was a textbook on logic at the University. It was also trashed. The extant Rig Veda is Brahmin rubbish.

The Greeks knew exactly how to destroy the Hindus (F) who did not believe in war and god. They invented the delusional Kashmir Brahmin to do their dirty work.

Reading material Home