Twenty thousand years ago the Kui, Mundari, and Agni people moved to the foot of the Mt. Trikuta of the Vindhya in search of dependable perennial rainwater. Their original homelands were submerged by the rising seawater levels caused by the glacial melt.

Agni (DNA J2b) lived along the Ken river and spoke the Grandhika dialects. Kui (DNA H) lived along the Hiran tributary of the Narmada river and spoke the Teli dialects. Mundari (DNA O) lived along the Sone river and spoke the Mundari dialects.

Around 2,200 BCE, there was a global drought that lasted for almost 200 years. The Trikuta reservoirs dried out, and all the people were forced to move to the east. They lived from the Patna city (Bihar), to the current Hirakud reservoir (Odisha) of the Mahanadi river. Over time, some of them moved south to the coast.

The Agni Grandhika established a University at Patna to teach logic. The University had no central campus. The faculty were located all over the place. Students moved from one professor to the next. The original Rig Veda and Bhagavad Gita were books on logic at the University written in Grandhika. The Agni professors Vasudeva Krishna, Siddhartha, Ajatashatru, and Mahavira lived around Patna.

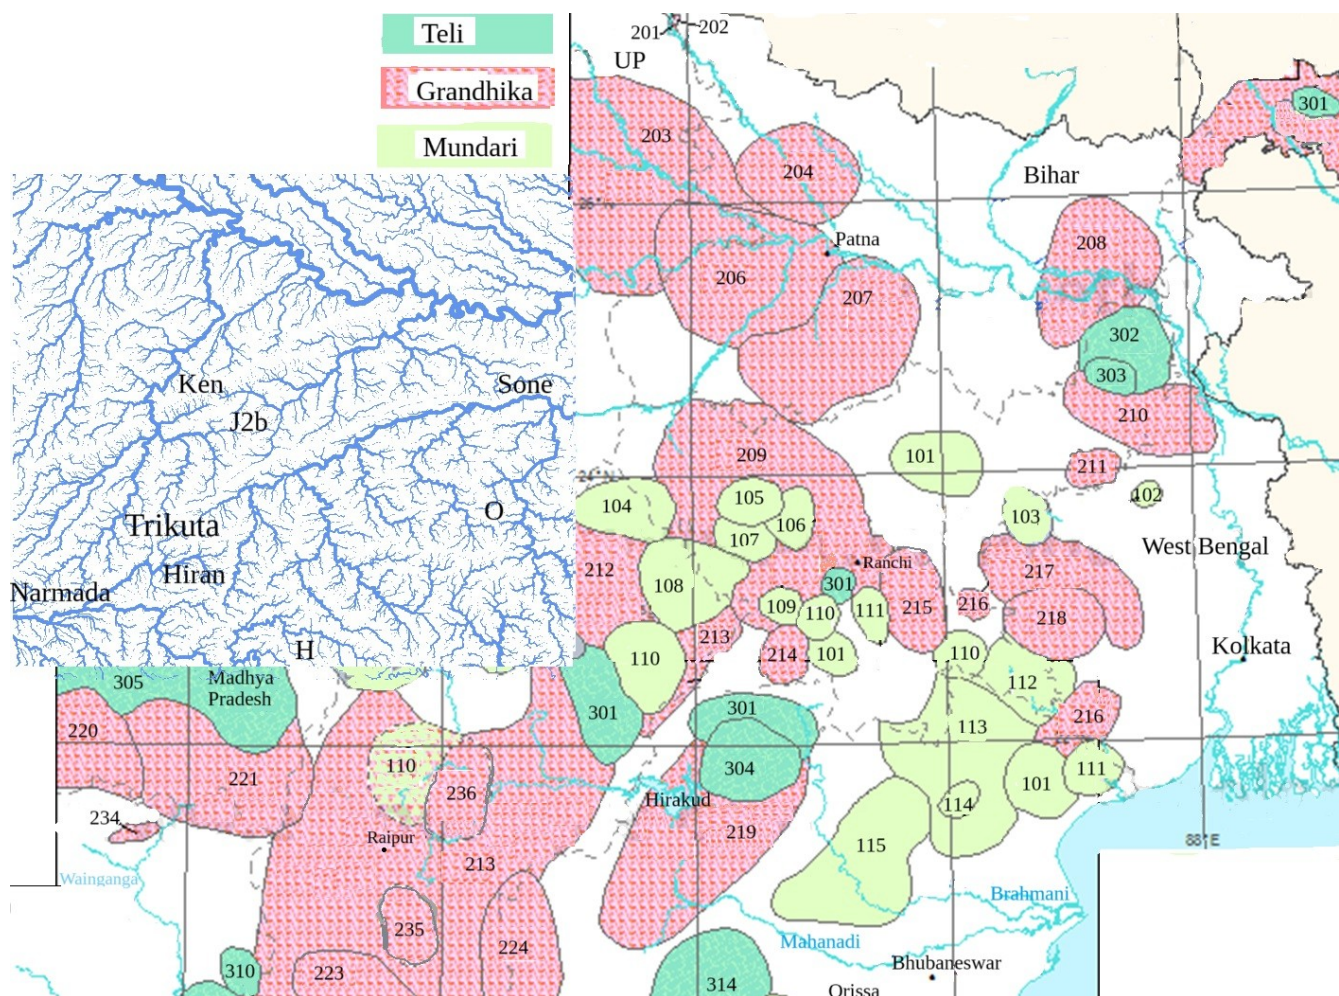

The Hindu University, logic, and cultures were deliberately and totally destroyed by the Greek colonialists who moved to Patna after collapse of the Gupta empire.

The Zend Avesta was a sacred book of Persia composed in the Avestan language. Shiva, Vishnu, and Indra were gods in the Zend. Hindu were logic based. They did not have gods. The Greeks (R1b) employed some unethical Persians (R1a1) to vandalize logic books at the Patna University to worship manuals of warmongering gods of the Zend.

The unethical Persians, called Brahmin, invented a synthetic language called Sanskrit, as a mixture of Grandhika of Patna and Avestan of Persia. It was a mixture of only the two separate languages that existed 2,000 miles apart. All the Sanskrit literature was recent fiction, invented by the Greek stooges, falsely promoted as of antiquity.

Sanskrit has only Grandhika of Patna and Avestan of Persia. The Zend was pure Avestan. Using scientific tools, we subtracted the Avestan from Sanskrit to extract Grandhika. The excavated Grandhika literature has a different story to tell.

The map below, derived from the Census 2011 data, shows the areas where the Hindu dialects are still spoken. Distribution of the dialects speaks volumes of the native Hindu who lived only at the Trikuta for 20,000 years.

Grandhika was a language of the J2b, along the Ken river, at the Trikuta, for 20,000 years. Avestan was the language of the unethical Persians expelled from Persia to Kashmir around 500 BCE. Sanskrit was invented in Kashmir as a mixture of only Avestan and Grandhika, financed by the Greek colonialists. Avestan, Grandhika, and Sanskrit were distinctly different languages. Avestan, not Sanskrit, was the language of the Zend gods. Avestan of the South Bactria was derived from Iranian only 4,000 years ago. Sanskrit was invented in Kashmir only 2,000 years ago.

Persia Zend Sanskrit (Avestan), Kashmir Brahmin Sanskrit (Sanskrit), and Patna Hindu Sanskrit (Grandhika) were distinctly different languages. Linguists mistakenly called all of them as Sanskrit. They invented fancy fictional stories of human history.

The Avestan literature (Zend, Gatas, Vendidad) was pure fiction of the South Bactria, to glorify warmongering gods of European origin. Gatas were transcribed into Sanskrit as Vedas. Vendidad was transcribed into Sanskrit as Dharmashastras. All the gods in the Sanskrit literature were warmongering gods of the Zend.

All Sanskrit literature was Avestan literature transcribed into newly invented Sanskrit. It was Avestan fiction dressed in new clothes. The vandalism was financed by the Greeks and carried out by the unethical Persian refugees in Kashmir called Brahmin.

Sanskrit and Brahmin were Greek inventions. Sanskrit (Avestan + Grandhika) was invented by the Greeks in Kashmir. It was a product of a committee, not a natural dialect of any people. The unethical Persian refugee outcasts on the Greek payroll were granted a new social status as Brahmin. Brahmin glorified themselves in superlatives in the Sanskrit fiction to conceal their scandalous past. All Sanskrit literature was a compilation of non-verifiable and nonsensical statements. It reduces to ashes when exposed to logic.

Native Hindu were warm climate Asia Homo Sapiens of Homo Erectus culture. They lived only in the Peninsular India for 60,000 years. They avoided the Himalayas and Indus river like the plague. Hindu in the Sanskrit literature were cold climate Europe Homo Sapiens of Homo Neanderthal culture who lived only along the Himalayas and Indus.
